Grow Autumn-Flowering Bulbs

For Perennial Beauty

Four hardy and invaluable members of the bulb kingdom yield colorful blooms from September through the last days of fall. They are Autumn Crocuses, Colchicums, Sternbergias and Hardy Cyclamens. Plant them as you would early spring bulbs in permanent colonies or drifts in the sunny rock garden, in the informal border, or along a slope, and let them naturalize. They not only come back, but increase vigorously from year to year. Shipped and planted in August they flower during the succeeding months. They like plenty of late fall and early spring sunshine.

Bulbs for Months

Gladioli

Gladioli have long held a well-deserved place as the staple of the summer garden. For gardeners know that if they grew no other summer flower except successive plantings of gladioli they would still have a long season of colorful bloom. The wide color range of gladioli includes shades of nearly every color in the spectrum. They may be planted among perennials and annuals or in beds by themselves; and they should be grown in profusion so as to assure a constant supply of blooms.

The following selected list includes the better recent introductions as well as the best of the older varieties. All bulbs are top-sized and high-crowned. Shipment is made in April and early May, and bulbs planted then are least troubled by thrips. However, bi-weekly plantings for successive blooms may be made up to July 1. All shipments are accompanied by cultural directions.

Hymenocallis (Ismene)

Peruvian Daffodil

The large white, amaryllis-shaped blossoms of hymenocallis, or Peruvian Daffodil, are carried on strong stems from two to three feet tall. They are deliciously fragrant. The foliage consists of long, broad spears of rich green. For successive bloom the bulbs may be planted at two-week intervals from late April to mid-June. They are lifted in October for winter storage in a dry place of medium temperature. They grow vigorously and increase from year to year.

Montbretias

The charming spikes of montbretias resemble gladioli in form and habit, but the montbretia spears are shorter and narrower and arch more gracefully. Unlike most spring-planting bulbs, montbretias need not be lifted each fall. They will winter over with a light mulch and will readily naturalize with a little protection.

Our Book on Bulbs" "Bulbs for Beauty"

More and more gardeners are discovering that our general book on bulbs, Bulbs For Beauty, is worth many times its cost to anyone who grows or plans to grow bulbs. It was written expressly for the amateur gardener and answers such questions as how to grow bulbs, where to plant them, how to care for them through the year, what kinds and varieties are best. It deals with bulbs that flower in the spring, summer and autumn, and also contains a chapter on indoor growing bulbs. Beside 277 pages of text it contains copious illustrations. It sells for $3.50 per copy and we shall be pleased to fill your orders.

Hemerocallis

Daylilies still reign supreme as the flower yielding the greatest summer-long beauty with the least amount of care. No wonder busy gardeners turn to it in ever increasing numbers as the plant to count on for robust growth and certainty of bloom.

Ever more fascinating hybrids of hemerocallis are being introduced all the time, ranging in color from creamy yellow, sometimes rose-tinted, through golden yellow, rose or buff, to darkest brown and purple. Blooming times vary from May to September. They should be planted copiously for

Tuberous Rooted Begonias

Tuberous begonias are ideal summer flowers for the summer gardener with problem shady areas. Their richly colored flowers often measure five to six inches across and are freely produced right up to cool weather, when the tubers are lifted for winter storing. The dark green foliage is attractive in itself and the spectacular blossoms may be floated in a shallow bowl for a beautiful table decoration.

Tuberous begonias like from half to nearly full shade and good, loamy soil not thickly matted with roots. They need plenty of air so avoid planting them under trees or shrubs which sweep the ground. No summer care is needed except watering in very dry weather.

The tubers may be planted outdoors about mid-May or potted in March or early April for transplanting outside about June 1. Naturally, blooms begin earlier from plants started indoors. We offer top-size tubers of the double camellia-flowered type as follows:

is (Daylilies)

a steady supply of garden flowers and of bud-filled stems for indoor vases.

While they will survive almost any kind of soil and location, hemerocallis flourish best in good garden soil with at least a moderate amount of sunshine. So rapidly do they multiply that the roots may be divided every three years to start new colonies. Thus a modest investment will yield huge dividends in garden beauty in a short time. Listed below is a selection of the finest hybrid daylilies with blooming times indicated.

HOW TO GET TO "LENTEBODEN"

To All Our Gardening Friends:

Now is the time to plan and choose your flowers for your 1955 summer and autumn gardens. For a copious supply of blooms for cutting and for garden enjoyment be sure to plant generous quantities of bulbs. Tuberous begonias for shady areas, daylilies and gladioli for months of successive blooms, tuberose for their fragrant whiteness, montbretias for their tawny appeal, all these should be grown wherever summer flowers of great beauty and easy culture are wanted—which undoubtedly includes your garden. And be sure to order now for August planting, the colchicums, autumn crocuses, sternbergias and wild cyclamens for bright drifts of autumn color.

See Our Spring Display

Again we are pleased to invite you and all your gardening friends to come and enjoy our festival of spring beauty here at "Lenteboden." Here for two months each year some 50,000 spring-flowering bulbs in more than 1,000 separate plantings by variety bloom in all their glory. The show begins with the early species tulips, little bulbs and hyacinths, and continues through the daffodils to the tall may-flowering tulips and scillas.

A Living Catalogue

Each year this display is regarded by more and more gardeners and garden lovers as a horticultural event they would not miss. We hope that you will be among them this spring. Moreover this show has a value far beyond the beautiful spectacle which it is. It is also a living catalogue. As such it surpasses the most lavishly illustrated printed list imaginable as a guide in selecting spring-flowering bulbs for your own garden. For here you can choose varieties, not from printed lithographs, but from the flowers themselves. So make note of the empty spaces in your garden, then come to Lenteboden, select and order your bulbs for the fall. We can offer for sale only for the duration of the display the vast range of varieties shown here. Later buyers must choose from a much more restricted list.

Three Times To Visit

Our gardens will be open for visiting and placing orders for fall delivery from April 1 through May 25, from 10 A. M. to 6 P. M. every day including Sundays. Weekday visiting is usually less crowded. New Hope can be reached from the New York area by U. S. Routes 22—202. From the Philadelphia vicinity, Pa. 232 and Pa. 263—U. S. 202 lead to New Hope. It is an easy two-hour drive from midtown New York and about an hour and a quarter from downtown Philadelphia. The map inside shows the location of our gardens.

Blooming times vary with the seasons but fall approximately into three periods during each of which the gardens should be visited:

- 1. April 1—April 20 for hyacinths, early bulbs and species tulips.
- 2. April 15—May 5 for early tulips and daffodils.
- 3. May 1—May 25 for tall May-flowering tulips, scillas and late daffodils.
